BARRERE LITTLE SYMPHONY PLAYS HERE OCTOBER 31

Composed of Thirteen Members and Eleven Different Instruments.

FIRST OF COURSE OF ENTERTAINMENTS

Plays Forgotten Works of Great Composers With Inimitable Charm.

The Barrere little symphony which will be heard here at the Congregational church, Friday evening, October 31, is, in the words of its eminent conductor, "an orchestra in miniature".

Composed of thirteen members and eleven different instruments, the ensemble possesses all the qualities of a full symphony orchestra. All of its members are artists of the highest calibre, each a virtuoso of the first rank. George Barrere himself is triply distinguished as a conductor, an inimitably witty raconteur, and the world's premier virtuoso of the flute.

When he founded the orchestra in 1914, it immediately caught the fancy of the music loving public. Here was a group possessing all the qualities of a full orchestra, and at the same time having a subtle charm that is lost in the larger organization. It was able to bring to life many of the long forgotten works of the great composers, intimate and delicately beautiful works that had been gathering dust for a century simply because there was no orchestra of the size and calibre for which they were composed.

A charming informality heightened by witty and enlightening talks with which the distinquished conductor intersperses his musical program makes the concerts unique in the present day musical life of the country.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at Cushman's. Full and half course reservations may be made now. Individual admission tickets at $1.50, go on sale Friday afternoon.

Pi Delta Epsilon Hears International News Man

Charles Kennedy of Port Henry, N. Y., was chosen to represent college publications on the student council at a meeting of Pi Delta Epsilon Thursday evening at the Chi Psi lodge.

After the regular business meeting of the journalistic fraternity, Mr. Paul Shinkman of the International News Photo gave an informal talk. Mr. Shinkman is a member of the Michigan chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, and was formerly employed as London and Paris correspondent for the Chicago Tribune. His accounts of contacts with both continental and English notables proved interesting to the local journalists.

Mr. Kennedy, who received the student council appointment, is advertising manager of the CAMPUS, and was a member of the Saxonian board. Last year he also held the position of assistant advertising manager of the 1931 Kaleidoscope. He is affiliated with Chi Psi fraternity.

Middlebury Dance Follows B. U. Game

Following the Middlebury-B. U. game last Saturday, an Alumni reunion and a football dance were held at Repertory Hall in Boston. Music was furnished by the well known college orchestra, "The Black Panthers". New, colored, Middlebury movies were shown by Mr. Wiley during the evening.

Many alumni living in Boston and vicinity attended along with students who had been to the game, members of the band, the football team, and friends of the college.

Middlebury To Open State Series Saturday With Norwich Cadets

The annual quest for the football championship of Vermont opens Saturday when Coach Beck's Middlebury grid team will give battle to the Norwich eleven at Northfield. As is usually the case in state series contests, past performances mean but little and the teams will be evenly matched for the battle royal which should take place on the Cadets' gridiron.

Both teams have run up against tough opposition so far this season, but the Cadets have found their way into the win column while the Panther has yet to taste victory. Norwich opened the season by taking their annual pasting at the hands of Dartmouth's great eleven while Middlebury was being overwhelmed by Columbia. The Cadets took a week off then while the Blue went down before Williams. Both elevens lost the following Saturday, the Maroon to Bates and the Blue to Mass. Aggies. The Cadets won their first game Saturday, downing the United States Coast Guard Academy, but Middlebury was again beaten, this time by B. U. As it now stands, neither team can thus far claim a successful season, but real success will start for the team which wins Saturday's battle.

Comparative scores would seem to favor the Horsemen. Columbia beat Middlebury 48 to 0. Dartmouth then trounced Columbia 52 to 0 which would make the Green 100 points better than the Blue. On the other hand, Dartmouth only beat Norwich 79 to 0. By these scores it would seem that Norwich should be 21 points better than Middlebury. However, Dartmouth only beat Boston University 74 to 0 and in this game it being later in the season, Dartmouth was or should have been at least three touchdowns better than they were against Norwich which was the year's opener. As the Boston team could do little or nothing with the Middlebury regulars, it would seem that Norwich and Middlebury should be very evenly matched and here the scores are right because the two teams are evenly matched.

The Cadets lost Waining and Kane from the backfield and a loss of two such star backs is a big blow to any team, but the Horsemen do not seem to be any weaker than last year and observers say that they are much stronger. To offset the loss of Waining and Kane, the Cadets have the great pass combination O'Brien to Coane intact again. Coane was injured last season and was unable to play against the Panther in the game at Middlebury. Considered

GILI GAYA REPLACES C. CONCHA AS HEAD OF SUMMER SCHOOL

Pereda, Head of Spanish in Charge of Advance Executive Work.

GILI GAYA KNOWN AS EDITOR, AUTHOR

New Director Leaves Post at University of Porto Rico.

Dr. Samuel Gili Gaya, of Madrid, Spain, outstanding authority on Spanish literature, phonetics and philology cabled his acceptance Monday of the directorship of the Middlebury College summer school. Dr. Gili Gaya was the visiting professor from Spain at the school last summer, and will take the place of Carlos Concha who resigned in September to take up an appointment as Peruvian minister to Bolivia at La Paz.

Dr. Gili Gaya is the recognized authority in Spain on phonetics and philology. He was given the title of Licenciado en Letras at the University of Madrid in 1915, and Doctor en Letras in 1921. In 1919 he was professor of Spanish language and literature at the Instituto-Escuela of Madrid. Last year he was visiting professor from Spain at the University of Porto Rico.

At present Dr. Gili Gaya is a member of the Centro de Estudios Historicos and author of many articles dealing with phonetic and literary subjects, published by the "Revista de Filologia Espanola". He was formerly editor of Espinel's "La Vida del Escudero Marcos de Obregon" and more recently of Mateo Aleman's "Guzman de Alfarache".

The director of the bureau of foreign relations of Porto Rico, speaks of Dr. Gili Gaya thus:

"May I add that Dr. Gili Gaya's year here has been so brilliantly productive, so stimulating to his students and to all who have been privileged to know

SCOTTISH DEBATERS RECENTLY CHOSEN

John M. MacCormack and Norman A. B. Wilson to Compose Team Representing the Visitors.

John MacDonald MacCormack and Norman Alexander Bruce Wilson have been chosen to speak for the students' representative councils of Scotland in the debate with Middlebury to be held December 2 in the Mead Memorial Chapel. The question to be debated at this time is "Resovled: That mechanical and scientific progress do not necessarily represent an advance in civilization". Middlebury will uphold the negative case.

Mr. MacDonald, who is a native of Glasgow and of highland parentage, entered Glasgow university as an arts student in 1924. He graduated M. A. in 1927 and LL. B. in 1929, and has since been doing post-graduate work. At the age of 25 he has carved for himself a prominent position in Scottish public life.

He is a powerful speaker and has addressed meetings in practically every town in Scotland. It is not to be wondered that in his student career he has been elected to many important university positions. Among other things he has been editor of the students' handbook, senior vice president of the S. R. C., convenor of debates, and vice president of the dialectic society. He is now a qualified solicitor and intends to set up in business on his return from the American tour.

Representing St. Andrew's university is Mr. Wilson, who was born twenty-one years ago in Edinburgh, Scotland. He has spent most of his life in the highland district of Balquihidder, being educated at the McLaren High

THRASHER JUNIOR CLASS PRESIDENT

Charles E. Thrasher of Fitchburg, Mass., was elected president of the class of 1932 at a meeting of the junior class held in Warner hemicycle October 16. At another meeting held October 21, Ellen Brightwell was elected vice president.

Mr. Thrasher won freshman football numerals and has since been on the varsity squad, winning his letter last year. During both his freshman and sophomore years he was a member of the Dean's list ,thereby proving his scholastic as well as his athletic ability. Mr. Thrasher was treasurer of his sophomore class. He is a member of Blue Key, "M" club, Alchemists, and Alpha Sigma Phi.

Dr. Wright Lectures on Reading Aloud

Dr. Charles Baker Wright, professor emeritus of English, presented the first of two lectures in the Abernethy room of the library yesterday at four-thirty. His subject, "The Art of Reading Aloud" stimulated the interest of all present.

Doctor Wright introduced his theory that it should be the ambition of everyone to be an artist in some field. "Expression is increasingly the goal of all education". With the able rhetoric of his understanding and love for literature, Doctor Wright demonstrated the value of reading aloud and how it could be accomplished.

Another lecture will be given by Doctor Wright Tuesday, October 28, at four-thirty in the Abernethy room.

CAMPUS TRY-OUT NOTICE

Try-outs for the editorial staff of the CAMPUS will meet tomorrow afternoon in room nine, Old Chapel, at 4:30 p. m. Contrary to the notice at the last meeting, the subjects of news and news value will be discussed.

1932 KALEIDOSCOPE DRIVE SUCCESSFUL

Early Sales Indicate Encouraging Student Response to Yearbook Circulation Campaign.

According to early reports released by James Olson, circulation manager of the 1932 Kaleidoscope, the drive to enlarge the subscription list of the yearbook promises to be very successful.

Beginning last evening and continuing for one week, a group of twelve men and women is visiting all students who have not as yet paid their initial deposits. By this systematic drive it is expected that all students who desire a book will be given the opportunity to purchase it within a week. In cases where the full payment of five dollars cannot be afforded at the present time, it has been arranged that deposits running as low as one dollar will assure delivery of the book. The balance will be due when the books arrive in May from the printers.

The plans for the publuishing of the book as outlined by Kirkland Sloper, editor-in-chief, include the project of having all material in the hands of the editor before December 1. In this way it is expected that the book will be able to appear at an early date, and all work will be as accurate as possible. During the coming week blanks will be distributed among the members of the junior and senior classes in order that their activities may be listed.

Practically all of the individual pictures of the faculty and junior class were completed last Thursday. For the convenience of those who were unable to fulfill their appointments last week, the photographer will be in Mdidlebury again at a later date. At that time the remaining group pictures will also be taken.

Grey Shop to Sponsor Fashion Show Benefit

A fashion show for the benefit of Porter Memorial hospital, sponsored by the Grey shop and under the direction of Miss Dorothy E. Ross, will be held in the lounge of the Middlebury Inn next Thursday evening, October 23, at 8.

Complete costumes for sports, street afternoon, lounging and bridal attire will be shown by six local models with important attention given to accessories. The hats are to be furnished through the courtesy of the Little Hat Shoppe and Mrs. H. C. Walker. Orchestra selections are to be given and informal dancing will follow at the close of the program.

The following college students are acting as models: Edna Cottle '31 and L. Wall '31. Townspeople participating are Mrs. Kenneth Gorham, Miss Genevieve Goodrich, Mrs. Hazel Cameron, Mrs. Jack Swanson and Miss Theresa Shambo who is to be shower girl.

Tickets for the show may be obtained at the Grey Shop on Main street.

Ellen Kellogg Elected Senior Secretary

Ellen Kellogg was elected secretary of the class of 1931 at a meeting of the senior class held after chapel yesterday.

Miss Kellogg is prominent in women's activities, having been on the debating team and in women's prize speaking contests. She is vice-president of Tau Kappa Alpha, and is a member of mortar board and Pi Beta Phi.

This completes the election of senior officers for the year.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Late in June, the President, together with college officers throughout the country, will present his annual report to the Corporation. In this statement he will outline the activities and achievements of the college for the year 1930-1931. Complete to the last penny, the financial report will embody the income and expense of every task undertaken. Complete to the last detail, will be included the President's ideas and suggestions for improvements and additions to the College.

In this manner, briefly stated, the affairs of this college are regulated, the resources analyzed, and the future examined. The administration thus carries on efficiently from year to year, and the chief reason lies in the continuity of effort implied in the careful summary of work completed and work to be done.

What is there in the management of student activity to compare with this method? An examination of records and minutes of meetings will show that there is nothing to show for what has gone before. As a general rule it can be stated that student governing bodies, for example, are lax and inefficient in keeping records of their activities. The possibilities for careful management are not even partially utilized.

Leaders of student activity are hesitant and uncertain, and their actions are sporadic, for there is no body of experience set down by their predecessors upon which they may rely. It appears that with every Commencement the old order yields to the new, and the result is tragically wasteful duplication of effort during the subsequent year.

What makes matters even worse is the fact that the new officers are themselves in no way to blame. They can only learn by trial and error, and by the time their experience is worth anything, Commencement comes around again. The fault, in final analysis, must be attached to the system which permits such waste.

The remedy is as simple as it is obvious. Let the head of every student organization make a complete report at the end of his year in office. In this statement he should outline his policy, his experience, and his suggestions for improvement. Such a report, immensely valuable in itself, should be kept in the permanent possession of the organization for the information of those following.

Furthermore, delegated officers of the administration might well undertake to examine and criticize these reports, and add their findings and conclusions from their own mature experience. In this way, a constructive continuity of effort, a cumulative flow of knowledge can be handed down from year to year. The eventful success of such a system cannot be denied.

It is supposed to be an attribute of civilized man to record his experience for the benefit of posterity. Science and philosophy continually add to the store and have been doing so for centuries. A body of knowledge is thus erected which cannot but result in progressive development. It is time for students to recognize and act upon this elemental fact.

One criticism of the above plan might be that an exceptional student executive can accomplish more in a year than the ordinary succession of leaders can do in a decade. This fact is true, but not enough to justify a broad generalization. A society—and a student body—advances by slow and often tortuous processes, not in fits and starts. An unusually successful leader arrives on the scene but once in a long while. Personal achievement in the end is always supplanted bit by bit through social accomplishment.

BOOKS

"After Christianity What?", by Theodore W. Darnell, New York, Brewer & Warren, $3.00.

Mr. Darnell defines religion as "that attitude of mind and devotion of ability which, prompted by the scientific spirit, raises life's ordinary interests from means of personal gratification to means of creative living for all."

After summarily disposing of Christianity by saying the world has outgrown it, and that the teachings of Jesus are inadequate today, he goes on to show how real religion can be or should be applied to everyday life in business, pleasure, and politics.

Harry Elmer Barnes says in the introduction: "Mr. Darnell's book fills a greater need in the religious field than any other book published in America in a generation". One is inclined to doubt this assertation, for much of the material in the book is not new, but the soundness of many of the ideas expressed warrants repetition.

For those who are not familiar with present day trends in religious thinking, and especially for those who are afraid to think for themselves, the book should prove of some value. We recommend it to college students.

"Fashions in Marriage", by Claude Farrere, New York, Alfred H. King & Co., $2.00.

The versatile author of "Thomas the Lambkin" has offered us another excellent sophisticated novel of modern Europe. This one deals with the life of Isabelle Hennebont who is married to Paul de La Bohalle only to find that she has been tricked into the marriage for her mother's convenience.

In a masterly manner, Farrere has traced her rapid maturity as the result of her disillusionment, and has excellently shown the social decadence in aristocratic Europe just prior to the world war.

In "Fashions in Marriage" we see the late war not as a blight upon humanity, but as a baptism of fire and blood which has largely washed away the moral rottenness and the intelllectual degeneracy of the first decade of this country. One lays down the book with the belief that the sins of the past have been atoned for and that we are now experiencing a new dawn of hope.

The other day we were looking over the New York Times book reviews for October, 1929, and were interested to note the changes in the type of best seller in the short period of one year.

Among the books we noted as receiving the most space that month were: "The Methodist Faun", by Anne Parrish; "All Quiet on the Western Front" by Remarque; "July '14" by Ludwig; "Hans Frost" by Walpole; "Lorenzo the Magnificent" by David Loth; "Up to Now" by Alfred E. Smith; "The Autobiography of Calvin Coolidge" (we've tried to place that name—it has a familiar sound; perhaps it was a racehorse).

"Believe It or Not" was still selling ten thousand copies a month; "Elizabeth and Essex" were still being discussed, while followers of Philo Vance were still trying to discover who killed Cock Robin.

This year "The Story of San Michele" is the year's best seller with "Laughingg Boy" running it a close second. Bernard Shaw's collected works are being published at an exorbitant price. Rosamond Lehmann's new novel "A Note in Music" has demonstrated that she is one of the most outstanding of our younger novelists.

Several students have asked us when we are going to review Donald Henderson Clarke's new novel "Millie". The answer is that we are not. In the first place, there are only twenty-four hours in a day and every second of each day is too valuable to waste on such trash, an din the second place, we could publish neither a sincere nor on adequate review unless this sheet were printed on asbestos. For the benefit of the ignorant and the eager, "Millie" is published by the Vanguard press whose address is 100 Fifth avenue, New York City. The price is $2.00, if you must know.

SHREDS AND PATCHES

At last we are beginning to get somewhere. One of the students has capitulated and cold bloodedly admitted that we college students are the "intelligentsia" of the world.

There is an interesting story told regarding the founding of Drew theological seminary. It seems old Daniel Drew, sworn enemy of Jim Fish and Jay Gould, had nearly acquired a corner on the Erie stock. Suddenly it seemed that Fisk and Gould were going to unload their holdings on the market. Uncle Dan'l saw that his pocketbook was going to be hurt if such a thing should happen, so he prayed that it might be averted. In the prayer, he promised that he would found a theological seminary if the market didn't break. It didn't, so we have Drew seminary as a result.

Something is wrong with this college! We have passed Painter Hall daily ever since college opened but as yet we have seen nary a sign of a deluge or a race riot. The place is getting to be a regulary nunnery.

Ed Lockwood is so pleased that he was mistaken for the president of M. A. C. that he is seriously considering taking out nomination papers and running for the office of governor of Vermont. Here's wishing you the best of luck, Ed!

If all goes well, Miss Knapp expects to hire Harry Richmond and Texas Guinan to act as hostesses at her roadhouse next summer. Personally, we can think of lots of local talent which should do well as drawing cards, but it is not our policy to indulge in personalities.

We see the Kappas are trying to rehabilitate the South street villa by rethatching the roof. Don't sell the old homestead, girls; give the old thing away!

It seems to us that the beautiful yellow silk curtains which the aesthete on the fifth floor of Hepburn has installed would be of much more use in Pearsons. It's a crime to use material like that just to frame windows.

Statisticans have estimated that if all the lead which has been pumped into Mr. Diamond's body were collected and melted down, there would be enough to make three life sized busts of Napoleon and one of Hizzoner James E. Walker. Keep up the good work, Legs!

In one of the more notorious night clubs a gentleman and lady were quietly dining the other night when another lady walked up to the table, glared at the old Lothario and said: "I may be only your wife, but—" and picking up the tomato bisque before him, poured it over his shirtfront. The headwaiter approached the irate dame and calmly admonished her: Madame, the place for that is in the home." Cold-blooded, these New Yorkers.

Several female aborigines were arguing over the pronunciation of the name "Boisseau" the other afternoon. "Why," said one, "any person who had taken any French at all would know it was pronounced 'Bozo'."

Middlebury recalls with pride some of her heroes of the past, but for some unknown reason the name of Thomas Herbert Davis has never been mentioned. Davis was born in Richmond, Va., and was a member of the class of '57. When the civil war broke out he joined the first regiment of Virginia infantry and was soon made a captain. In Pickett's charge at Gettysburg he was captured and imprisoned at Johnson's island, from which he made a sensational escape on foot to Canada. Here joined his regiment and was recap tured a few days before the end of the war, but was soon released. The moral from this story, children, is: "You can't keep a good man down". In other words, "Always be payed off in pennies."

COMMUNICATION

To the Student Body:

Reports from the CAMPUS of October 15 indicate that the 1932 Kaleidoscope board is planning to open an intensive circulation drive this week. Having possessed the Kaleidoscope of each year for over a decade, I believe that I am in a position to measure the worth of the current year book.

During the last few years the Kaleidoscope has grown from a mediocre review of the college term into an integral part of each student's college life. It now not only presents an accurate detailed account of college activities, but also reflects the spirit of the student body. The Kaleidoscope has become a book of personalities, one which is almost a necessity for each student.

According to early reports, the Kaleidoscope of this year promises to present attractions which hitherto have been denied the students of Middlebury. Photographer's portraits of all the faculty will at least double the value of the book for the student. I, for one, have complete faith in the ability of the new Kaleidoscope board to produce a year book which will surpass all former ones of Middlebury.

Hence I hope that the undergraduates will cooperate by heeding the call of those in charge of the circulation drive this week. You will never regret the five dollars, in fact, in a few years you would not sell the book for many times the original cost.

Best wishes for the 1932 Kaleidoscope!

EIGHT CHOSEN FOR WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Eight new members were elected to the women's Glee club at a meeting held in the Music Studio on Thursday, October 17. The following students were chosen: Elizabeth Abell '31, Elly Delfs, Marie Ernst, and Julia Sitterly, '33; Olive Burchard, Ruth Hanchett, Elizabeth Platt, and Barbara West, '34.

As about fifteen of the former members expect to participate again, the director of the club, Miss Prudence Fish, feels confident of a successful year.

The first rehearsal will be held in the studio on Thursday afternoon. Additional tryouts will be held at this time to fill the two remaining places in the club.

"ARE YOU ABLE TO FOLLOW JESUS?"

Pres. Arlo Brown of Drew University Raises Question at Sunday Vespers.

The power in Jesus was emphasized by Dr. Arlo Brown of Drew university who spoke at Sunday Vespers, October 19. He stated that modern youth is wiser than the flaming youth of a few years ago.

He said in part: "The problem of the modern age is to have the will power for presonal life. There are two types of people, the pessimistic and the complacent. We are having or are near the end of an inning of pessimism in our civilization. Destructive and critical articles receive the attention of our papers and magazines. In a recent article 'Farewell to Sophistocation' the author says that the younger generation is wiser. He says that youth is neither mid-victorian nor is it the flaming youth of the post war time. There was no achievement with the new freedom. The clever writer Ruskin tells us that pessimist still remains to some extent. Infidelity, despair, and suicide are recognized in our stories while courage, success, and ideals are called mid-victorian.

"There are more people in this age suffering from complacency than pessimism. Here is a modern aspect of the problem. In 1930 the United States is suffering from over production of crops and over abundance of manufactured goods, yet there is no means of feeding the poor hungry families.

"Two young men came to Jesus with the request for the privilege to sit one at his right hand and one at his left. Jesus asked, 'Are you able to drink what I shall drink and be baptised with what I shall be baptised?' Jesus refused their request because they accepted without knowing the situation. 'You know not what you ask,' he said. Youth in its ignorance cannot appreciate the difficulties of life.

"Are you able to follow Jesus? To know how to follow Jesus is to know how to interpret His life. John and Paul followed Jesus but did not understand His life. Religion is a challenge, a call to duty. Loyalty to a leader is religion. Jesus wanted to be followed not recognized. 'I am the way of the truth and the light'. There was power through following Jesus and applying His way of living.

"According to Russell's philosophy there is much more freedom in China than in the United States because the Chinese are followers of Confucius and he never expected a man to be better than he could be. He knew the limitations of men. Jesus sets high ideals which man is not able to achieve. His power is in the sense of God.

"Pessimism belongs to the mechanical school whose belief is that a great outside power uplifts us. Jesus had power, men and women have it. Christianity is like a window which from without shows no beauty. but within displays unspeakable splendor. 'Are you able to drink from the cup from which I am drinking?' is a challenge for us all."

Arthur Weigall, whose biography "Nero: The Singing Emporer of Rome" has just been published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, is working on a book about Marc Anthony to be published some time next year.

Carolyn Wells is a mythodical writer. She says that she writes from 9 o'clock in the morning until noon and that she writes the same amount at each sitting; just twelve pages with three hundred words on a page. She seldom does any rewriting or any revising. That is the way she wrote her new detective story "The Ghosts' High Noon" published this fall.

Mae West's forthcoming novel which was to have been called "Black and White" has been taken over from Brentano's by the Macaulay company, and the title has been changed to "Babe Gordon", that being the central character of the book. Other titles considered were "Hell's Belle" and "Pleasure Woman". We are not so much interested in what the publishers will call it as we are in the names which will be given it by the watch and ward society and by dear old Boston.

Women Debaters Meet to Discuss Season's Program

Twenty women were present at an informal meeting of the Debating club, which was held last Tuesday evening. Priscilla March '31, manager of women's debating, presented an outline of the year's program.

Dates and suitable questions for debate were discussed by the members. Communications have been received from several colleges which have not been debated before, among them Bates, Colby, New Jersey college for women, and New York university. Teams will meet Boston university, Keene Normal school, and New Hampshire at home, and St. Lawrence at Canton and Vermont at Burlington, as part of a regular series of contests.

All the members of last year's team, which had an unusually successful season, expressed their intentions of continuing to debate, while most of the new candidates have had some debating experience. A meeting with Prof. P. C. Perkins, coach of debate, will be held very soon, at which time more definite plans for the season will be formulated.

ENGLISH CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Plans for Year's Work Discussed at Gathering in Abernethy Wing of Library.

The English club held its first business meeting of the year Thursday, October 16,in the Abernethy wing of the library. Marshall Montgomery '31, president of the club, presided.

Plans for revising the constitution were discussed and a tentative outline of the club's policy for the year was made. It was decided that only juniors and seniors would be eligible for membership. Upperclassmen interested in joining the club should send applications for membership to Marshall Montgomery '31 or Marjorie Frye '31.

The next regular meeting of the English club will be held early in November. Further announcements concerning this meeting will be made at a later date.

Two New Members Elected to Press Club

Kenneth C. Parker '31, editor-in-chief of the Press club, announces the election of Reamer Kline and Philip Carpenter to membership in that organization.

Carpenter has made a name for himself scholastically and has done considerable work in the college Glee club, orchestra and band.

The remaining officers and members of the club for this year are as follows:

Elizabeth Massie '31, assistant editor; Donald Brown '31, managing editor; Jilda Pacheco '31, business manager; Samuel Abbott '31, Mary Henseler '31, Ward Yunker '31, Ferdinand Mann '32, Thomas Miner '32, Fred Weaver '32.

History of Club.

The club, starting six years ago with the aim of giving to the students a chance at newspaper writing and editing, because of lack of interest among other reasons, fell to pieces after a little more than three years of existence. In lieu of the club, the college appointed in January 1928 a newspaper man as director of the public relations and he remained until July of that year. The following September Marlowe Sargent Gibbs took over the work and also conducted a course in journalism. Mr. Gibbs continued until February, 1929, and from then on until February 1930 things were run in a hit or miss fashion.

Last year Storrs Lee '28 took over the handling of the college publicity and through his work and interest the Press club was revived, beginning to function in March 1930. Soon after its revival the club sent delegates to the Eastern Collegiate pressboard conference at Tufts college and as a result new ideas were obtained and put into force. A new form for the covering of assignments has been adopted and proven satsfactory, with a large number of good stories appearing in many of the eastern newspapers. This means recognition of college activities and practically financial self-support for the club.

The football material is being handled this year by Samuel Abbott for the Vermont and Metropolitan newspapers.

Candidates for try-out work were called on October ninth and twenty-nine students responded. Lectures on the art of newswriting is the program for the fall season.

COLLEGE OBSERVES VERGIL'S BIRTHDAY

Dr. Vincent Ravi Booth Gives Spiritual and Physical Glimpses of Latin Poet at Exercises Held in Conjunction With High School

Dr. Vincent Ravi Booth, pastor of the North Bennington Congregational church, was the principal speaker at a lecture on "The Spiritual Value of Vergil", given October 15, the bi-millenium anniversary of the Mantuan, at the Middlebury High school, under the auspices of Middlebury College and Middlebury High school.

Preceding the lecture, slides illustrating scenes and personages mentioned in Vergil's "Aeneid", were shown, and Miss Inez Cook of the Middlebury High school faculty explained the story connected with each.

Amory Seaver, principal of the high school, introduced Dr. Booth as the man who sponsored the Bennington college project.

"Because Publius Virgilius Maro was one of the greatest poets that the human race has produced; only two others can approach him, Dante and Shakespeare"—this was Dr. Booth's explanation why after two thousand years Vergil's works are still read. He described Vergil as "a big man, physically, of a large, bony frame, dark, oily complexion, rustic in appearance, in sum, a great, big, overgrown farmer. But in soul, mind, and spirit, Vergil was more than a poet; he was a prophet who felt that he was under compulsion to speak and explain the work the gods expected of the Romans. This compulsion stands revealed in the spirit of Aeneas, who is relentlessly driven on to the fulfillment of a divine will and not what he prefers."

Dr. Booth compared Vergil's departure from his father's farm and his entrance into political and social life at Rome, to a similar phase in the life of Calvin Coolidge. He likened Vergil, the "anima candida", the gentle, simple, friendly, compassionate man who had an immense capacity for love for animals, nature, and man, to Jesus of Nazareth. In the "Legend of the Golden Bough" Vergil proved that "omnia vincit amor", that love reaches even beyond the grave and leads Aeneas on toward the fulfillment of his goal, Lavinia, Italy.

With quotations from "The Divine Comedy" Dr. Booth proved that Dante gave Vergil all the credit and acknowledged him as his teacher. Analogy was also drawn between works of Vergil and Wordsworth's "Ode to Duty".

The lecture was well attended by high school and college students, teachers and professors of Latin, and lovers of the classics.

High School English Class Visits Library

Friday, October 17, a group of forty-two students from the English course at the Middlebury high school visited the Egbert Starr library. The feature of the visit was a talk on the Thoreau collection given by Mrs. Potter, who has charge of the Abernethy wing.

Mrs. J. Milo Jeffery '17, is teaching in the Rutland high school and is living at 95 Pleasant street, Rutland.

Russell A. Seavey '26, announces his new address as box 964, Syracuse, N. Y.

Charles W. Murdock has changed his address to 200 Bedell avenue, Hempstead, N. Y.

It seems to us that the English accent as exhibited by the cast for "A Lady of Scandal", which was especially imported from Great Britain for the production, largely accounts for the depression from which England is suffering at present.

The student body seems to be baffled by the new structure going up at the east gate of Porter field. The seniors believe it is a hot-dog stand; the juniors claim it's the new college speakeasy (no relation to the C. C. department); the sophomores think it's the K. D. R. annex, while the freshmen are afraid it's the new gym.

The "Second Little Show" may not be so good as the first, but it has that tune "Sing Something Simple" which is as catchy as anything we've heard orchestras grind out in some time. Here's a hint that may or may not be of interest. If you want to get decent seats for "Nina Rosa", "Princess Charming" (with Evelyn Herbert), "Girl Crazy", or "Fine and Dandy" (Joe Cok's new one), during the Xmas holidays you'd better have someone reserve them shortly, as they're all selling seven or eight weeks in advance and you can't even depend on Grays.

Speaking of holidays, we're going to beat the local Post Office to it, by telling you now to mail your Christmas packages early!

UNCERTAINTY OF VOCATIONS BAFFLES HALF OF CLASS OF '34 ACCORDING TO STATISTICS FROM E. J. WILEY

"What shall be my vocation in life", seems to be a primary question of a majority of freshmen men at Middlebury College.

According to statistics compiled by Edgar J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel, 49 of the entering class of 105 are entirely undecided as to their proposed vocation. The most pouular proposed profession selected by fifteen men is teaching. Business is favored by twelve, engineering by seven, and law by six. In the minority are medicine, forestry, ministry, chemistry, dentistry, music, journalism and finally one vote for the coast guard service.

Among occupations of the fathers of the freshmen men most popular is business, thirty-nine skilled laborers, seventeen, professional, sixteen, scientific, professional eight, agriculture eight. Thirty different colleges and universities were attended by parents, with Harvard, Middlebury, Columbia and Vermont in plurality.

Eighteen is the average of the entering class of 1934, though years vary from sixteen to twenty-six. Forty-two are eighteen years of age, twenty-one seventeen, twenty-three nineteen and eleven twenty.

A complete analysis of Mr. Wiley's statistics is presented below:

Middlebury Grid Teams In State Series Games

Boston University Scores Touchdown on Panther Second Team; First String Eleven Outplays Terriers at Boston Saturday.

Coach Beck started his second string team against the Boston University Terriers at Nickerson Field Saturday and the Beantowners took advantage of that fact to score a touchdown and thereby win a close decision from the Panther gridsters. Middlebury's regulars outplayed the Terriers throughout the latter part of the contest, but could not push over a score.

With the Norwich game coming next Saturday, the Middlebury coach played wisely in starting his second string men, but the subs were unable to hold the Boston team and the Terriers rang up a touchdown at the very start of the first period. The regulars entered the game later and put up the best exhibition of football the Blue has given this year, but could not seem to make the final ten yards which meant the difference between defeat and victory. Advancing to the Terrier's 10 yard line was accomplished, but the Blue could not gain that other 10 yards.

The play of the Middlebury team was greatly improved over the showing made the previous Saturday and the many alumni and followers of Middlebury football team were given plenty to cheer about as the Panther proceeded to outplay the Scarlet and White in the latter part of the game.

Boston scored their touchdown at the very beginning of the game. The Terriers were unable to gain after the kick-off and were forced to punt. Middlebury's second string backfield could make no headway through the B. U. line and Corliss booted a high one which the wind kept from going places and the Scarlet had the ball deep in Middlebury territory. Behind nice interference "Moon" Mullins cut through a big hole in the Panther wall and raced 24 yards for the game's only tally. Marino drop kicked the extra point.

The Terriers started another advance, but the Blue line held and took the ball on downs. Beck sent in his first string men and midway through the second quarter the Panther made his first bid for a touchdown. Bakeman recovered a fumble by Clem on the Terrier 39 yard line. A penalty and some line plays carried the ball to the B. U. 24 yard line. Markowski then threw a nice pass to Hoyle for a first down on the nine yard stripe. The Terriers then dug themselves in and took the ball on downs.

Middlebury's passing attack was working great and later in the game two Markowski-Hoyle passes took the ball from the B. U. 45 yard line to the 11 yard stripe. Once again the Terrier line held and Markowski tried a pass on the last down which grounded in the end zone and gave the B. U. team the ball on their own 20 yard line.

The Boston team was unable to gain through the Middlebury regulars and was forced to kick. Line plays failing to get necessary yardage, Markowski hurled a long pass to Charlie Thrasher who made a nice catch and was only kept from scoring by a great tackle by Clem on the B. U. 10 yard line. Running plays lost ground and once again Markowski resorted to the air route. He heaved a nice pass to Hoyle, but could not make the necessary yards and the ball went to the Hub team on downs.

The remainder of the game saw the Middlebury line holding the B. U. offense in check and on more than one occasion the Panther forwards broke through to nail Terrier ball carriers for losses and force Clem to punt from behind his goal line.

Middlebury's offense remained in action until the final play but could not make the goal line. Time after time

COACH HESSLER'S FRESHMAN GRID ELEVEN JOURNEYS TO BURLINGTON; OPEN STATE SERIES AGAINST CATS

Coach Harvey Hessler's freshman grid team will journey to Burlington Saturday to give battle to the highly touted 1934 team of the University of Vermont. The Panther yearlings have defeated the Kittens for two years running and will be out to make it three.

The Vermont team is exceptionally strong this year and has had considerable more success than the Middlebury eleven thus far, but in all fairness to the Panther cubs it should be noted that the Kittens have not as yet met teams equal to the elevens the Blue has been battling. Both teams will be out for blood and with each college enjoying better than ordinary material, the contest should be a battle royal.

Man for man, the two teams are pretty well matched. The Kittens have a set of hard running backs, but Hessler can put some fine ball toters on the field too. Both elevens have good lines with the Vermonters appearing a bit stronger in the middle of the forward wall and the Blue having a slight edge over the Kittens at the wings.

The game with Montpelier Seminary at Burlington Saturday showed the Kittens not too sure of themselves in handling the ball, but this may have been partly due to rain and extreme cold. Fumbles halted many of their advances against the boys from the capitol, but the Kittens will be fighting for their first victory against Middlebury in three years and should hold the ball much better.

Saba, at left half for the Green and Gold, will bear watching. He is fast on end runs and can plunge through the line with the best of them. Smith, Wesoly and Pratt are good ball carriers and can give any team plenty of trouble.

The Middlebury freshmen are capable of giving a good account of themselves. The Clark game showed that the Panther cubs are a much improved team over the one which succumbed to Clarkson.

Coach Hessler has an alert backfield, capable of an offensive that should give Vermont plenty to think about. Williams' punting should be a big help to the Blue frosh at Burlington. The Vermonters have no man who can match kicks with the Blue's quarterback. Fallon, Ferdon and Riccio are good ball carriers and with another week of working together should develop real offensive power.

Middlebury's forward wall is heavier than usual and is well balanced. The battle between the two lines should be a good one. The wing positions on the Blue team seem to be a trifle stronger than the Vermont ends, but in a state series game this can be discounted.

In all probability the winner of the game at Burlington Saturday will be crowned champion of the state as the Norwich yearlings do not seem to be as strong as either Middlebury or Vermont. This fact should prove a strong incentive to both teams and a real battle is to be looked for.

Elect Captain and Managers for Frosh Football Team

The freshman football squad last Friday evening elected Robert J. Simmons captain of the team for this season with Carl M. Lorenz and Herbert R. Van Kleeck assistant managers.

Robert Simmons is well recommended as he was for two years captain of the Oneonta high school team in New York and has had considerable experience. He is pledged to Kappa Delta Rho fraternity.

Carl M. Lorenz and Herbert R. Van Kleeck are also pledged to fraternities, the former to Sigma Phi Epsilon and the latter to Chi Psi.

NORWICH GAME SATURDAY AWAY

one of the best ends in small college ranks in New England, Coane improves the Norwich line 100 percent. Although great on both offensive and defensive plays, Coane is at his best on the receiving end of forward passes and his uncanny ability to snare the pigskin out of the air will make it necessary for the Middlebury team to watch him throughout the game Saturday.

Another improvement in the Norwich line is the moving of Fanos from end to center. Fanos tried to fill Coane's shoes at end last fall, but was entirely out of place at the wing position. He is thoroughly at home at center and has been a bulwark on the defense this year.

Of course the Horsemen have no Tansey at tackle this year, but Consoletti, Martin and Gibbons are good men and play their positions well. Sipila and Smith play the guard positions well and this gives the Cadets a pretty strong line.

In the backfield Coach Graham has O'Brien and Fullerton for a veteran nucleous and can call upon Del-Vecchio, Montagno and Weiss for further duty. O'Brien is the starting point of most of the forward pass plays that Norwich has become famous for and as such will bear watching.

Two years ago at Northfield, two passes in the first few minutes of the game gave the Cadets two touchdowns and a lead which withstood the heaviest battering possible from Guarnaccia and the rest of the Blue backfield. Norwich passes have spelled doom to a good many teams and the Panther will have to be on the alert every minute to guard against them.

Man for man, the Middlebury line is just as strong as the Norwich for-

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM WINS SECOND RACE BY SCORE OF 24-31 SAT.

Six Panther Runners Place Among First Ten to Finish as Winner Covers Course in Fast Time.

The Middlebury Cross country team won its second victory of the season when it defeated St. Stephens last Friday by a score of 24 to 31. The Blue placed three men among the first five and six men among the first ten. Weber, of St. Stephens, won the race in the fast time of 29 minutes and 10 seconds.

Captain Perrin and Harwood, both of Middlebury, tied for second place and Bell of St. Stephens came in fourth. Following him came Cox and Pratt of Middlebury and then Sprague of St. Stephens in seventh place. L. Glacier, running in place of Young who dropped out after the Williams meet, placed eighth and Tates of St. Stephens placed ninth. Ingersoll of Middlebury placed tenth.

Kimball of Middlebury came in eleventh with three St. Stephen's men taking twelth, thirteenth, and fourteenth. These men were Courtney, Riley ,and Morrell.

The race was run on the St. Stephen's course and was completed in considerably faster time than the Williams meet held the week previous. Clear, crisp weather aided the runners.

FRESHMEN HARRIERS COMPETE IN TRIALS

L. Sears Places First With Carter Not Far Behind, in Trials for Norwich Meet.

L. Sears took first in the freshmen Cross country trials held Monday afternoon to decide the team which will meet Norwich Saturday. Thirteen men ran over the course which was a little more than a mile and a quarter long. The first man finished in 6 minutes and 46 seconds. The first seven men are expected to run in the Norwich meet. These seven men, in the order in which they finished are: L. Sears, Carter, Cushing, Seymour, Bugbee, McKee, and F. Taylor.

Horsemen Cancel Cross Country Meet

Norwich university has cancelled its cross country meet with Middlebury, scheduled for next Saturday, on account of not having a team.

This cancellation means that the cross country team has only two meets away from home this year. One of these two was held last Saturday when St. Stephens was defeated and the other is with R. P. I., November 8.

Prior to the St. Stephens meet, trials were held to decide who should run in the place left vacant when Young '32, withdrew from the team. His place was filled by L. Glacier '33. Whether or not new trials will be run before the Springfield meet, to be held November 1, is not yet known.

Sports On and Off the Campus

The United States Coast Guard Academy has made it possible for us to get somewhat of a line on the comparative strength of Middlebury's state rivals. Vermont defeated the Coast Guard team 13 to 0 a week ago at Burlington and Saturday the Norwich eleven outscored the Tars 6 to 0.

These scores would indicate that the Catamount is a touchdown better than Norwich, but this assumption cannot be put forth with very much confidence in its truth. Fans state that the Tars put up a better battle against the Horsemen than they did against the Green and Gold, but that is only sayso.

Although it is fun to watch comparative scores, they mean but little as events in the past have proved. However, observers say that both Norwich and Vermont are considerably stronger than they were last season. The Cats have a stronger and heavier line with a veteran backfield. The Cadets have numerous veterans and Coane, one of the best ends in New England small college ranks, is back once more.

On running plays, the teams are evenly matched, but Norwich's vaunted air attack is far superior to that of Vermont. The center of the Green and Gold line is stronger than the center of the Cadets' forward wall, but the Cats are weak at the end positions while Norwich is very strong there. It will be interesting to note how these teams fare against each other.

Vermont plays New Hampshire University this Saturday and should be in for plenty of trouble. The Durham boys have a strong team this year with one of the finest lines in the history of the institution. Vermont's heavy forward wall will have a busy afternoon trying to hold the New Hampshirites. Eustis is the star of the Wildcats' offense and this fellow should prove plenty troublesome to the Green and Gold.

MIDDLEBURY FROSH SUCCUMB TO CLARK GRIDSTERS 12-6

Hanoverites Score Touchdowns in First and Second Periods to Send Blue Yearlings Down to Defeat in Close Game.

Middlebury's freshman team put up a great battle against the heavy Clark School grid eleven on Porter Field Saturday, but were forced to taste defeat by the score of 12 to 6. This was the second defeat of the season for the frosh, but the team showed much improvement over the previous contest. Clark put a strong team on the gridiron and throughout the first half had things pretty much their own way as far as the scoring was concerned. Two tallies were made, one in each of the first two periods. The Middlebury freshmen put up a strong fight however and made the Clarksters work for every inch. This fight bore fruit in the second half and the Blue team more than held its own. Early in the last period the Panther cubs asserted themselves and scored a touchdown.

The Hanoverites scored both their touchdowns in the first half and both were the result of passes. Each of the first two cantos saw a Clark tally, but the second half was a different story with the Middlebury team holding the upper hand.

Clark started an offensive at the very outset of the game, but lost the ball on downs as the Panther cubs held on their own 23 yard line. Unable to gain, Williams punted and the Clark offense was on again. This time, the attack did not halt until Nicholson had planted the pigskin over the Blue goal line for the first tally. The try for the extra point was low and the quarter ended with the Blue on the short end of a 6 to 0 score.

The second period saw the Clarksters again hammering away at the door of another score. A punting dual was favorable to the Panther team and gaining possession of the pigskin in Clark territory a Middlebury offense was started, but petered out without doing much damage.

Line plays gained nicely for the Clark team and a first down was made. Neville then fooled the Blue team and called for a pass. Kinney, the Clark fullback, snatched the pigskin out of the air and romped over 50 yards for the second touchdown of the day. The Clarksters tried to score the extra point via the pass route, but failed and the half ended with the New Hampshirites leading 12 to 0.

Neither team could gain ground at the start of the second half and engaged in a punting dual. At the kicking game Middlebury had a distinct edge with Williams consistantly booting the leather farther than any of the Clark men could manage to do.

The close of the third period saw the Panther offense come to life and three first downs in a row were made by the Blue team. Fallon and Ferdon lead this attack and turned in some nice ground gaining exhibitions.

Starting in the last period where they left off in the third canto the Middlebury frosh continued to press goalward and a pass, Williams to Hickox, placed the ball in scoring position. Riccio carried the leather across the last stripe and as the extra point was missed the final score stood Clark 12; Middlebury 6 .

The Blue yearlings still showed weaknesses, but great improvement over the Clarkson game was clearly evident.

Norwich Rally Friday Beginning at 7:00 P. M.

A football rally for the Norwich game will be held at the McCullough gymnasium Friday at 7:00 p. m. instead of at 7:30 p. m. as formerly announced. Students are asked to come promptly, as the rally will be a short one on account of the house dances at 8 p. m.

ANNUAL PLAY DAY HELD HERE OCT. 18

Middlebury W. A. A. Sponsors Competitive Games for the Women of St. Lawrence and U. V. M.

The Women's Athletic association of Middlebury sponsored a playday last Saturday afternoon, the purpose of which was to foster friendly intercollegiate spirit in athletics. Besides the Middlebury women participating, there were fifty representatives from the University of Vermont and seventeen from St. Lawrence university.

The program of sports, which included relays, hockey, tennis, volley ball, and archery, began at 2 p. m. The point system was used in scoring, and in the final total, the red team came out on top with 18 points, the blues second with 17, and the orange team third with 16 points. Each team was composed of members from all three colleges.

class. They are worth working for. Striving for them will bring to you much more from the college and you in turn will be giving more to the college. To each one "making the grade" will come considerable prestige and a story of attainment to be told and retold by others to those who will want so much to hear of such successes of yours. For immediate use some four of you are to divide the substantial sum of $1,000 in cash. The money is now in a Middlebury bank awaiting claimants with proper credentials.

In 1928 the Middlebury Alumni association talked over in a meeting the idea of an alumni fund. You know, or will admit at least, that undergraduates are sane, normal individuals; but alumni—well once a Middlebury undergraduate gets a diploma he shows peculiarities, and one peculiarity is the somersault he turns, flopping from altruism in college matters to comparative forgetfulness of his Alma Mater. Now some have thought that an alumnus would like to continue a practical interest in college affairs if a medium were supplied. A committee was appointed to investigate and find a medium and do away with the alibi for alumni disinterestedness. After months of study the committee proposed a scheme which was adopted by the Association, and history for Middlebury has been in the making this past year.

Men—undergraduate men of Middlebury are to benefit, and four hundred alumni are going to rejoice this year because they are to be once again interested parties in college affairs. The interest that you undergraduates are going to show this present semester is to increase the number of alumni this coming year who will participate in the Alumni fund. You see it is a circle, but not a "vicious one". You encourage the alumni to encourage you.

The awards? There is nothing like them in the old catalogue. $250 to the member of each class whom a watchful committee declares to be most outstanding man in that class in scholarship and campus citizenship. The award to a freshman will be made on his record this first semester. That means the freshmen must start work at once. The awards to sophomore, junior and senior, will depend on the record this first semester combined with the record of the past college year. This semester is equally important, therefore, to men in the upper classes. The committee who will choose the recipients of awards will be made up of the dean of men, director of athletics, secretary of Alumni association, a representative of the faculty, and the president of the college. Such committee is representative of all phases of campus life. They will announce their decisions in February during Alumni Week, but no award in a class will be made if in the committee's judgement there is no one in that class attaining the standard warranting such award.

The alumni are to have a lot of satisfaction in contributing to the Alumni fund. You men of Middlebury should dare your alumni to make these awards permanent, and to establish others worth having, by an increase this semester in outstanding campus citizenship such as the old college has never known.

Yours for all that Middlebury can give us and for all that we can give her in appreciation,

J. EARLE PARKER,
Chairman, The Alumni Fund.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN GOLF AND TENNIS

Intramural Competition Remains at Standstill as Only Two Matches Are Played.

The second week in the intramural golf and tennis tournaments produced little competition, one match being played in golf and one in tennis.

Delta Upsilon became the first team to enter the final round in the golf tournament by defeating Delta Kappa Epsilon. In the other bracket Kappa Delta Rho and Chi Psi remained in the semi-final round.

The only match in the tennis tournament was between the Chi Psi and the neutrals, Chi Psi winning to advance into the second round with Delta Kappa Epsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, Delta Upsilon and Beta Psi.

Wig and Pen Banquets Last Night at the Inn

The annual banquet of Wig and Pen was held at the Middlebury Inn last night with about thirty people in attendance. The guests were Prof. and Mrs. Goodreds, and Professors Cady and Burrage. Geraldine Griffin '31, was toastmistress calling on Professors Goodreds, Cady, and Burrage for speeches.

Kenneth Parker '31, gave the welcoming message to the new members. This was answered on behalf of the new members by William Dorn '32. The new members of Wig and Pen are:

Eleanor Benjamin '32, Edmund Bray '31, Louise Brayton '32, William Dorn '32, Audria Gardner '31, Prudence Ingham '31, Clayton Lewis '31, Marshall Montgomery '31, Russell Rayner '32, Kirkland Sloper '32, Alan Branch '32.

At a meeting of the executive committee held after the banquet last evening it was decided that single admissions for the one act plays this year would be fifty cents. This admission will be charged at the program this week to the students who have not as yet procured their season tickets. For the benefit of these few it has been arranged that dramatic club tickets may be procured in the bookstore from H. B. Bicknell at the standard price of two dollars.

of his work, that Middlebury College will be fortunate indeed to have him for the summer. He is a born teacher, and a profound but modest scholar, with the poise and charm that come from a great-minded and large-hearted attitude toward the world."

In charge of the advance work of the Spanish summer school will be Clemente Pereda, Jr., present acting head of the Middlebury Spanish department.

Round Robin Play Progressing Slowly

Due to the inclement weather, very few of the round robin matches between the sixteen candidates for the varsity tennis team have been played off .

Loomis defeated Flagg 8-6, 6-1. Kerr defeated Sloper 6-4, 3-6, 7-5. Robart defeated Morize 6-0, 6-0. Wade defeated Sprague 6-4, 6-4. Loomis defeated Kerr 6-2, 6-0. Cushing defeated Morize 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Spanish Club to Meet.

The first meeting of the Spanish club will be held tonight at the Spanish house, Hillside road, at 8:00 p. m. There will be a program of Spanish games, musical selections, and group singing. Piano solos by Senor Clemente Pereda will be an added attraction.

M. C. A. Opens Social Year.

The Middlebury Christian association held its annual bacon bat for the women's college, Tuesday at flat rock. The second social event of the year will be the candlelight service held tonight in Pearsons social hall. Miss Maddock, Y. W. C. A. secretary of Vermont, will speak.

The proofs of the individuals will be here either the latter part of this week or early next week. When they arrive photography editors, William Leggett and Nina Barber, will distribute them at Hepburn social hall to the various members of the class. They must be returned to the same place within four days with the choice of the student properly tagged. The final pictures will be in the hands of the students in the latter part of November so that they will be available for Christmas use.

Orders can be increased at the time the proofs are seen. Samples of the various styles of cabinets and easels will be in the social hall and the extra orders may be made there.

NORWICH GAME SATURDAY AWAY

ward wall. With Tansey gone, the Panther has the edge at the tackle positions with Huntington and Captain Perry working smoothly. Huntington will have a hard time keeping his punts on a par with Coane's but should give the Norwich star a great rub. Middlebury's guard material with Brown, Duffany, Whitman, Johnson, and Webster on deck is on a par with the Cadet's guards. At center, Nelson has an edge over Fanos. Thrasher will give the Panther the better of the argument at one end position while Coane will give the Horsemen an advantage at the other end.

The Panther backfield will show Markowski, Hoyle, Foote, Hardy, Hartrey (if he is able to play), Bakeman and some capable substitutes. Markowski is a capable field general and his passing in the Boston game was great. He should be able to show the Norwich fans a thing or two. Foote and Bakeman are a pair of sturdy backs who can be counted on to do their bit. Hoyle is fast and should gain plenty of yardage at Northfield. Man for man, the Blue ball toters are equal to the Horsemen aggregation.

The importance of this game cannot be overemphasized. Whichever team wins Saturday will have gained the halfway mark in the quest for the Vermont football championship now held by Middlebury. Norwich is a stronger team than last season and Middlebury, although lacking a star of Guarnaccia's magnitude, can boast of a team no less powerful than last year's state champions. With these facts in evidence one of the toughest battles seen around these parts in a long time is looked for. The writer is inclined to favor Middlebury slightly, but in order to win the Panther will have to play real football from the start of the game until the very end. Any letdown may spell disaster.

school, Callander. In 1926 he entered the science faculty of the united college in the University of St. Andrew's as the second purser of his year. His academic standing has been high throughout his course; and on finishing this tour, he intends to take up research in chemistry.

He has been elected for two years in succession to the managements committee of the men students' union, and has taken a prominent part in the debates sponsored by this union.

During the past year he has been vice president (the president being a member of the staff) of the University parliamentary and dialectic club and has organized all student debates held in the university. He has been the leader of the socialistic party in the year's parliamentary debates. Wilson has also been sub-editor of his college magazine. When this tour is over he intends to take up the presidency of the university literary society, the premier student society of St. Andrew's.
